1 Introduction

In DFs everyone has the right to feel welcome, to feel comfortable, and to feel safe. Be friendly, respect boundaries. Do not expect everyone to have the same boundaries as you, be sensitive and respectful of all other people.

Before sharing any intimate behaviour such as hugs, sexual acts etc, with another person, remember that you must have consent.

Consent means positive affirmation and is necessary for each and every time, for every act. No means no and only yes means yes.

This affirmation must be explicit and non-coercive, “maybe”, “not yet”, “I’m not sure” do not count as giving consent.

Sexual arousal does not count as consent. If you are uncertain, ask. If you are not comfortable with asking for explicit consent, stop, until you are.

You must accept “no”, either verbally or through body language, as an answer without questioning the person’s reasons.

Threatening and/or coaxing people into saying yes does not count as getting consent. A person may change their mind and withdraw consent at any time, this must be respected.

If someone is impaired due to intoxicating substances or otherwise they cannot consent. If you are under the influence of intoxicating substances you must still get consent. You will be held equally responsible for your actions whether you are sober or otherwise.

2 How to help

We encourage DFs to look out for their each other. Don’t be afraid to check in with someone.

There will be a comments box available (Give place and appearance of box) for you to report anything that might be worrying you, including behaviour that breaks consent. The comments box will be dealt with according to our complaints procedure.

There are MEST-UP reps on duty at all times who are trained in mediation and support and are there to support you with any concerns relating to consent.

Any behaviour that breaks consent will be dealt with according to our safeguarding policy which is displayed (tell them where they can find a printed copy).

A summary poster of this policy will be on display at every event.

3 Explicit Consent List, if there are any further questions on the subject

- Consent for one act does not count as consent for any other
- Consent at one time does not count as consent at any other
- Not saying “no” is not consent
- Not saying “yes” when asked, is not consent
- Ambiguous answers, e.g, “maybe” or changing the subject, are not consent
- Coaxing a yes out of someone is not consent
- Threatening a yes out of someone is not consent
- If someone changes their mind you no longer have consent
- If someone is aroused, this does not mean they consent
- Someone who is impaired due to intoxicating substances or otherwise cannot consent
- If you are under the influence of alcohol or drugs you must still obtain consent
- If someone is unconscious they cannot consent

This is not an exhaustive list of forms of non consensual situations.

Consent = freely given, clear affirmation that you would like to experience whatever intimate act is being suggested, sexual or otherwise.
